Historical Note:

The library for the Texas College of Osteopathic Medicine was originally housed on the fifth floor of the Fort Worth Osteopathic Hospital. Joan Swain was the librarian. In 1971, the library moved to the Administration Building at 3516 Camp Bowie Blvd. In 1977, the library moved to the River Plaza Campus Center where the library occupied 5,000 square feet. Bobby Carter became the Library Director in 1978. In 1978, the library moved into the newly completed Medical Education Building I and occupied 15,000 square feet on the seventh floor. In 1984, the groundbreaking and construction began on Medical Education Building III, which would house Biomedical Communications and the Gibson D. Lewis Health Science Library. The library occupies three of the buildings four levels. Daniel Burgard became Library Director in 2008.

Restrictions: The collection is open for research. The collection is non-circulating and can be viewed by appointment.

Provenance: The collection consists of documents created or gathered by the library faculty and staff and therefore are a part of the Health Science Center history.
